Doug Paul Announces For You

"How ridiculous to use a cheap trick like this computer generated newsletter template to catch the attention of a producer or writer in the business," says Doug Paul, Voice-Over Talent. Paul who has been voicing commercials, promos, audio-visuals, movie trailers, and television documentaries for years, announced last week that he was sick and tired of trying to get people's attention through demo tapes and high priced agents. "My wife has been bugging me to get off my ass and promote myself, so I thought I'd try this approach." The former New York City based voice-over quietly moved to the mountains of Georgia a few years back and works exclusively from a family farm studio about an hour and a half north of Atlanta. "It is kind of funny...I have been voicing commercials and promos-you name it-from this studio for years without a hitch," says the voice-over performer. Paul's client list is a who's who of accounts. Doug Paul is best know as a "chameleon voice." The term refers to voice guys who can do lots of different voice styles and character voices. It was coined by a casting director who used to work at Bates in New York. She probably didn't originate it...but was the first person to describe Paul this way. "I preferred the title exotic dancer and Elvis impersonator," says Paul. Hopefully, the future holds many sessions with the readers of this promotional tool. Doug Paul can be booked through AFTRA/SAG agents or you can call direct. Prices are the same. "I just wanna work for you!" Call 1-888-807-2639. Doug's snazzy new website is www.WhoDougPaul.com.

VO & BUSH HOGGIN' FROM THE FAMILY FARM BY DOUG PAUL

After years of New York & Atlanta living, my wife and I purchased a nice farm in the North Georgia Mountains... about an hour and a half north of Atlanta. We decided to plant some grapevines. Pretty cool. I know it sounds weird, but I like to cut the grass in the vineyard. I also like to cut copy during the day. My family thinks that's funny too. "Hey Honey...I'll be home after I trim the field and knock out some copy for KABC." The farm is fully equipped with a professional recording studio and booth for ISDN, MP3 or overnight delivery. Ad folks and TV Networks have accepted the set-up. The sound quality is there. I usually like to wear overalls and have begun to think that I resemble that Ernest T. Bass character from TV's Andy Griffith Show. You know, I have the strange feeling I'm going to throw a rock at a window any minute now.

An Offer You Can't Refuse- FREE Stuff!

Now you can have your audition copy read by a professional voice-over guy absolutely free! (But that's not all) Yeah, I know. You can get hundreds of other guys to read your copy for free. But this offer comes with a little something extra. And I'm trying to figure it out right now as I type this....ahhh...Let's see...I know! I'll send you a free gift with the audition tape, CD, or MP3...Yeah that's it! You'll get a free gift for just letting me audition for you. Now if you actually hire me for a paying job...I'll send you something else as a follow-up. Oh sure, this kind of blatant gifting is considered "pay-o-la" by some folks and actually may be against your company's policy. But think of how cool it will be to receive something free in the mail after hiring Doug Paul to voice your project. Imagine a new set of cheap steak knives or some kind of minty smelling car freshener or a box of cheap chocolate...Pretty cool, huh?

Of course, I am obligated to say that this is a limited time offer. Some restrictions apply. Not available in Arkansas. Fat content may vary. See your Doctor for details. Not a beta blocker. Just call me up and request an audition and you'll receive a gift in return for giving me the audition. No money will change hands...that is until you actually hire me and we get on to the really cheap ass gifts. I sure hope I'm not gonna get you fired! Cheers!

Ya Know...

This is a good spot to tell you that despite what you see here, I really am a serious professional seeking voice-over work. I wish I had a fancy mission statement. That is what the template tutorial suggested for this space. Lord knows I've had to sit around tables with other professionals and write 'em before. Hell, I've even had one or two for businesses that I've owned. Look. I've been in business for myself since 1982. That was the year I was fired from a radio station and finally decided after 11 years in TV and radio that I'd go into "freelance voice-over" full time. So..like...It worked! I enjoy a fruitful career. And still love voicing projects everyday. Please let me send you a demo CD or MP3 and don't forget to check out my cheesy FREE GIFT article for FREE AUDITIONS. Call me at 706-865-0359. Let's work together!

Business Increases Because Of Doug Paul

Business could double if you hire Doug Paul for your next voice job. See!

Tell your Boss or the Sales Staff that you believe business will actually increase if you use the voice of Doug Paul. It only makes dollars and sense. And it is logical. If you hire DP for your next project...It will sound like a million dollars. Rather than using the same old voice guy or someone who sounds like a bad "DJ" working a wedding party...Hire a REAL pro to get the job done. Yessireebob...

Business improves when people hear something and say "WOW! I love the voice on that piece!!!" Believe it or not, the late Gene Siskel of the Roger Ebert & Gene Siskel Movie Critic Guys actually gave Doug Paul a "thumbs up" years ago at an TV industry seminar. It was quite flattering to Doug. He may be the only voice-over guy to ever get a "thumbs up?" Anyway, your Sales Manager will love this.... Just start carrying around clipboards and mention the phrase "paradigm shift" two or three times in every conversation. Those guys love that crap. If all else fails, order up a Doug Paul Audition and let 'em hear it. You can always flash the free gift we send you. And when you actually hire Doug...Think of how envious the sales suits will be, walking into your office and seeing your FREE Steak knives!
